1 Many of the most popular hikes and trailheads in the Scotchmans are marked on the map using this symbol. For a description of these hikes, see "Hiking in the Scotchmans" on the reverse side.

In the 1940s, a portion of original Star Peak Trail # 998 was abandoned in favor of a mining exploration road, which has served since as the lower half of the trail. Its steep pitches and rough surface have since been a bane and a pain to back packers and day hikers.

A New Old Trail

In 2012, using old maps and ground research provided by the Cabinet Ranger District, FSPW volunteers and FS personnel reclaimed the portion of the original trail highlighted in orange. Work is expected to conclude in the summer of 2013 when new tread connects to the upper trail. This tremendous volunteer effort will feature spectacular views and a greatly-improved hiking experience.
